Exercise Best Licensing Practices in Gardening

Join Jonathan Bordelon at our April 4 general meeting. He will be talking about landscape and horticulture licensing, as well as pesticide licensing. Bordelon is the Opelousas District Manager for the Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry.

President, MaryAnn Armbruster's message:

This has been the longest spring in recent memory. Normally, as you all know, we have a few glorious spring days, then we go BAM! Right into summer. That's the reason we have such a difficult time growing spinach. This year, however, is marvelous. A nice, long spring – I could have grown spinach this year. Oh, well.

We're about to get busy, really busy! April is packed with activities, many of which allow you to earn volunteer and/or education hours. It starts with our regular meeting on April 4 where you can earn one hour of Continuing Education and Volunteer hours for the time it takes you to travel to and from the library. Next, even though you won't earn any hours, there's Pine Straw pick-up. If you ordered, please remember to pick up between 8 and noon on Saturday April 7. The location will be different, it's a little further back than usual. Look for the signs.

Go to All Seasons Nursery, April 7, and hear LSU Ag-Center agent Dan Devenport talk at 10 a.m. about blackberries. Tuesday, April 10, listen to a lecture on "How to Attract Birds and Butterflies" at the East Library at 6:30 p.m. Contact Anna Gautier by calling (337) 445-3168 at the East Library for more information.

Then we have Festival des Fleurs starting on Saturday April 14. We will be combining our Spring Plant Sale with Festival des Fleurs this year. Our sales booth will be outside and our 'Ask A Master Gardener' booth will be inside. There will also be a number of talks providing CE hours: Roses, Orchids and "Separating a Staghorn Fern". If you haven't signed up to help yet, please do so soon. There are lots of different opportunities, so choose the one that suits you best, and volunteer.

Also on April 14th at 9:30 a.m., there will be 'Ask A Master Gardener' at All Seasons followed by "Care and Growing of Succulents" by Tina Jumonville at 10 a.m.

Next there is Sarah Schoeffler's 'Southern Garden Festival' on April 20 and 21 which benefits Family Promise — a wonderful local charity. Again, there are many opportunities for hours helping Sarah to set up the garden before the days of the dinner and tour. Any time spent prepping the garden beforehand is volunteer time, as are working 'Ask A Master Gardener', the entry table or the children's activities, but serving is not an approved volunteer activity. There will be several speakers providing Continuing Education hours. Contact Sarah to volunteer.

Last, for the month of April at least, is the Plant Swap on Saturday April 28 which will start about 8 am. at Moncus Park, aka the Horse Farm. The formal drawing will start at 9 a.m. and informal swapping will continue until everything is gone or 11 a.m.— whichever occurs first. Dig roots, start cuttings, collect seeds, bring whatever you have. Someone will want it. I love the Plant Swaps. Louann and her crew do a marvelous job organizing (it is sort of like herding cats) and I always go home feeling rich – without spending a penny.

That's it for April. Enjoy these great activities and opportunities to obtain new plants. Sign up to volunteer and sit down to learn and obtain CE hours. You could get at least half of your volunteer hours and four or five of your CE hours in April if you want to. Opportunities abound. Take advantage of them.

Good Gardening

Mary Annbruster

THE DEVENPORT REPORT

Patience- This is probably one of the hardest virtues for someone to achieve, especially when it comes to dealing with plants and hard freezes. Almost everyone in Acadiana has had some type of freeze injury to plants in their landscapes. Many of you have already pulled up some of the brown plants that were injured but maybe you should have had a little more patience and given the plants a chance to recover on their own. If your budget allows you to move along faster than Mother Nature, that is okay but for many patience is your key.

I was at a home yesterday, the client's fire bush was brown, and he had pulled back all the mulch away and wanted me to take a closer look. At first, I thought the plant was dead but as I got down on my knees and looked closer, I saw evidence of small reddish leaves coming up at the base of one of the branches. You need to remember that the roots of plants benefited from the warm soil temperature and received little to no damage from the cold. That being said, all the stored food in the root system will be going into those buds that survived the cold and the plant will take off and begin to fill in the space it once occupied last year.

The citrus in your yard follow the same trend. Have patience and wait to see if any small buds begin to appear on the trunk and branches of your trees, then prune the dead wood above the new growth.

Some palm trees may not send up a new spear leaf until August or September so remember to practice Patience!

LSH Agent Dan Devenport

EMBRACE THE CHALLENGE BRING YOUR REUSABLE WATER BOTTLE TO MASTER GARDENER FUNCTIONS!

What Plant is this?

I am an ornamental/culinary grass native to Asia. Grow me in Zone 8 or warmer, in full sun. Don't let my roots dry out. I can be grown in the ground but may die back in winter. In the ground, plant me 24 inches apart in rich, well-drained soil amended with compost or manure or clip me down to a few inches and plant me in a pot in good potting soil, and bring me indoors for the winter. Place me in a south-facing window and water me sparingly because I go semi-dormant. I can grow to 6 feet, so if I'm in a pot outdoors, I may tip over without support. You may also store me in a cool, dark place like a basement.

If used for cooking, start harvesting me when I'm 12 inches tall and my stem bases are at least 1/2 inch thick. Cut my stalks at ground level or hand-pull entire stalks. You want to get the entire swollen base, which resembles a scallion or green onion. The edible portion is near the bottom of the stalk. Peel the outer fibrous layer to expose the white, reedy part. To make slicing easier, crush the stem base with the flat blade of a knife. The heart of the stalk is soft and easily sliced, and may be used in stir-fries, salads, sauces and soup. Cut off the grassy leaves of the stalk carefully, because the edges may be sharp. They can be added to tea or a soup base (tom kah kai) in Thai or Vietnamese dishes.

Propagate me by seed or division. Use a sharp spade or ax to separate my clumps. They're tough. Since I contain citronella oil, I repel mosquitoes. Indoors, I might attract spider mites.

Do you know what plant I am?

Festival des Fleurs, the main fundraiser for Ira Nelson Horticultural Center, is selling raffle tickets for a drawing to be held Saturday April 14, 2018. There are $5 and $2 tickets. Tickets can be purchased from any festival member or you can contact Billy Welsh, with Ira Nelson at 337-482-5339, or Cindy Risinger- Johnson 337-250-1243.

First prize with the $5 ticket is a 4 piece Wicker Patio Furniture Conversion Set with cushions and coffee table. These can be viewed at festivaldesfleurs.org. The second and third prizes are a Container Garden from Girouard's and a Lion Fountain. For the $2 tickets there are a number of smaller items. The drawing will be at 3:30 PM and you do not need to be present to win. However, please be close to a phone at that time so they can notify you.

Festival des Fleurs, Lafayette's premier Garden Show and Sale, marks its 27th year with over 100 garden-related vendors expected. The event provides education outreach and resources for the the enhancement of horticulture in Acadiana and also supports the Ira Nelson Horticulture Center funding.

Local gardening groups, of which the Lafayette Parish Master Gardener members are counted, host information kiosks where garden techniques are shared with attendees.

Find for sale native plants, flowering shrubs, annuals, perennials, daylilies, roses, hibiscus, pass along plants, orchids, herbs and many more varieties of plants and flowers, in addition to gardening items such as pottery, garden iron-work, wooden garden features, hanging baskets, tools, supplies, books, bird feeders and much more. Activities are planned to inspire generations of area gardeners, both young and old.

As attendees leave they are reminded to pick up their free plant to take home and enjoy. The event begins at 8 am and lasts until 4 pm.

How to Grow and Care for Succulents

Just down the road from the Blackham Coliseum where Festival des Fleurs will be a flurry of activity, Lafayette Master Gardener Tina Jumonville will be making her appearance and presentation at All Season's Nursery (2974 Johnston Street). This is another opportunity to add some education hours to your Master Gardener requirements.

"Ask a Master Gardener will be onsite from 9:30 am until Tina begins her succulent presentation at 10 am. For those interested in caring for these interesting plants that hate wet feet, you may want to slide on over to All Seasons for the talk.

The Azalea Trail

On behalf of the Scenic Lafayette "Azalea Trail Revitalization Project," Master Gardener Cindy Wiley and I would like to thank the Lafayette Parish Master Gardener Association for the constant support and encouragement. Your participation in our public azalea plantings, azalea trail inventory and the yearly trail event each March, has affected the planting of almost 700 new azaleas along the trail and preservation of hundred's others. In the early part of the 20th century, it was reported that over 40,000 people from all over the United States traveled to Lafayette to drive the colorful azalea landscape of our city. In the 80's Southern Living Magazine listed Lafayette's Azalea Trail as a "Top 20 Tourist Destination." In 2016, the Azalea Society of America designated Lafayette as an "Azalea City," one of very few in America.

We just ended our 3rd annual Classic Car Cruise and Seersucker Bike Ride designed for trail enjoyment and to raise awareness about the value we feel these colorful flowers bring to our city. The newest member of our committee, Lafayette Tourism Center volunteer Denise Lanclos, reminded us recently that during our springtime, tourists from the northern states travel to Louisiana to enjoy our swamps, our food and our beautiful landscape.

Because azaleas put on such a great show, are fairly easy to maintain and bring such joy, Scenic Lafayette feels the effort to showcase the azalea, especially the large showy Southern Indica type, is worth the effort.

We have two major public plantings on our radar. Both would be in partnership with other organizations. Our next Azalea Trail Day event will likely be the 1st, maybe 2nd weekend of March, 2019. We will keep you posted.

Thank you again for your support! We love LPMGA!

Cheryl Broussard Perret, Scenic Lafayette Board of Directors and Master Gardener
